STP Route Process

1

Loop Prevention:

The primary purpose of STP is to prevent loops in network topologies. Loops can occur in networks with redundant paths, and if left unchecked, they can lead to broadcast storms and network congestion.

2

Electing Root Bridge:

2

Electing Root Bridge:

In STP, one switch in the network is elected as the Root Bridge. All other switches in the network determine the best path to reach the Root Bridge, and this forms the spanning tree topology. The Root Bridge is the central point through which all traffic flows.

3

Designating Ports:

Once the Root Bridge is elected, each switch determines the best path to reach the Root Bridge and blocks all other paths. Ports that provide the best path to the Root Bridge are designated as forwarding ports, while other ports are placed in a blocking state.

4

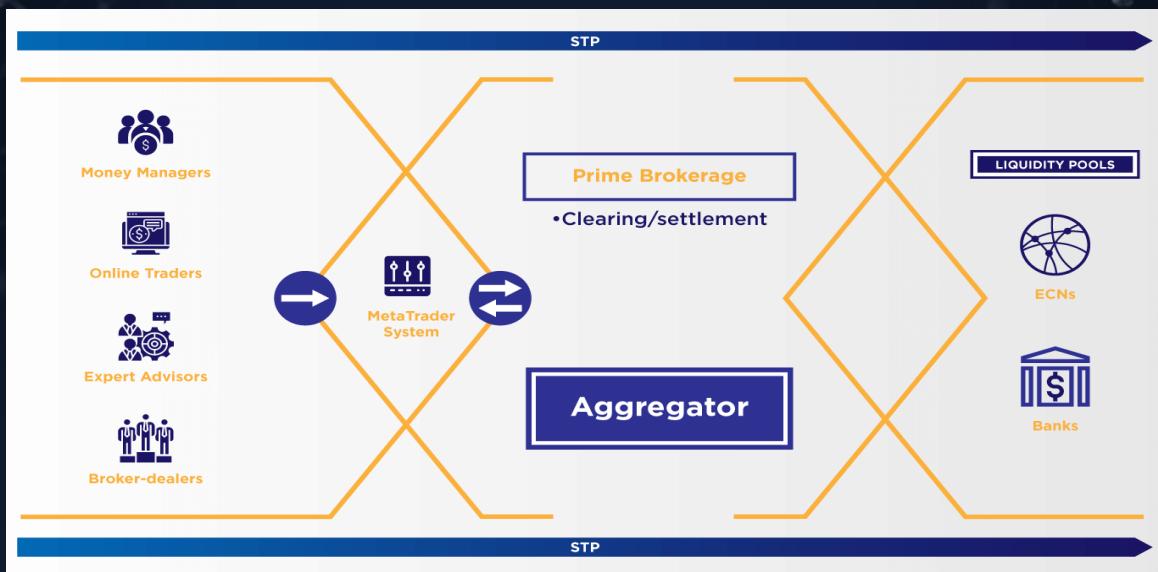

Backup Paths:

While STP blocks redundant paths to prevent loops, it also ensures that backup paths are available. If a link or switch fails, STP recalculates the spanning tree and activates backup paths to maintain network connectivity.

5

STP Versions:

There are several versions of STP, including the original IEEE 802.1D standard, as well as newer versions such as Rapid Spanning Tree Protocol (RSTP) and Multiple Spanning Tree Protocol (MSTP). RSTP provides faster convergence times compared to the original STP, and MSTP allows for multiple spanning trees within a single network, enabling better scalability and resource utilization.

Hybrid MAM Fund MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

Problems with Traditional Systems:

MAM: Master trades at 0.01, but only one slave account gets the order, which is unfair.

PAMM:

Based on percentage allocation (fairer), but slaves can only see profits, not trade details.

Our Hybrid MAM Solution:

Customized Commission Plans:

Options include self-rebate, network commissions, overrides, leftovers, and ranking-based commissions.

Floating Trade Concealment:

Hides floating trades in slave accounts to prevent copy trading.

Transparency:

Shows both order details and profits to all slave accounts.

Percentage-Based Trading:

Ensures all accounts get a trade, even if the master opens at 0.01.

High-Watermark System:

No profit sharing until losses are recovered.

Monthly Profit Sharing:

Based on account balances, without needing to close all trades

Stop Loss Feature:

Investors can set their own stop-loss amounts. If losses reach this amount, the system automatically detaches their account from the master account.

This system combines the fairness of PAMM with the transparency and flexibility of MAM, ensuring a fair, efficient, and investor-friendly experience.

LP Trading

Account Interface

The interface displays various currency pairs and their current market conditions. It includes a 'Board' section with four smaller charts, a 'Chart' section for EUR/GBP, a 'Blotter' for GBP/JPY, and detailed 'Order Book' sections for EUR/USD, USD/JPY, EUR/GBP, and others.

Bridge Interface

Clients position orders that trade through MT5 will be directly passed through our bridge to our LP. Here are some of the order details

Segregated Accounts in Regulated LPs: Ensuring Fund Safety

Maintaining segregated accounts for investors within investment funds structured as limited partnerships (LPs) is a practice designed to enhance fund safety and regulatory compliance.

Segregated Accounts:

A segregated account is a separate account held by a financial institution for a client or group of clients. In investment funds, especially LPs, it refers to a portion of the fund's assets that are isolated from the general assets. This separation safeguards investors' assets, ensuring they are not mixed with those of the fund manager or other investors.

Within LPs:

Limited partnerships (LPs) are a popular structure for investment funds. In an LP, there are general partners (GPs) who manage the fund and limited partners (LPs) who provide capital. Limited partners have limited liability and typically do not participate in day-to-day fund management.

Regulation:

The practice of maintaining segregated accounts in LPs is regulated by financial authorities. These regulations protect investors' interests, ensure transparency, and uphold the integrity of the financial system.

Fund Safety:

The main goal of segregated accounts in LPs is to enhance fund safety and investor protection. By keeping investors' assets separate and under regulatory oversight, investors gain greater confidence that their investments are managed and safeguarded properly.
